THE GOLDEN AGE OF NYC BASEBALL

From 1947 to 1957, New York City baseball teams dominated the sport, winning 17 of 22 pennants and 9 of 11 World Series titles — including every World Series played from 1949 to 1956. Legends like Joe DiMaggio, Yogi Berra, Roy Campanella, Willie Mays, and Mickey Mantle captured 10 of the 18 MVP awards during this era. The Brooklyn Dodgers also made a groundbreaking move off the field by starting Jackie Robinson at first base in 1947. We'll explore these remarkable years before the Dodgers and Giants relocated to California.

Presented by Hammer's Remembering

Bruce Hammer has been retired for over 10 years. He has found several ways of keeping his mind busy. "Hammer's Remembering" brings him into senior facilities, helps him make new friends, and enjoy an hour or so of reminiscing about a topic that's common to seniors. Bruce hopes you will find these sessions informative and entertaining.
